Question: I am a non-EU master's student working as a Werkstudent for €1,400 a month during the semester break. How many days per year may I work, do HiWi jobs count, and will I pay income tax on this?

Answer: As a non-EU master's student working as a Werkstudent, here are the key points regarding your work situation:

- Working Days: You are allowed to work 140 full days or 280 half days per calendar year without needing permission from the Ausländerbehörde (immigration office) or the Federal Employment Agency. A half day is defined as working up to half the regular daily hours of the company (usually up to four hours) [S2].
- HiWi Jobs: Student assistant jobs (HiWi) at your university or a research institute do not count towards the 140 days limit. This means you can work as a HiWi in addition to your Werkstudent position without affecting your allowed working days [S2].
- Income Tax: Since your earnings as a Werkstudent exceed the Minijob limit (which is €603 per month in 2026), you will be subject to income tax. However, the tax-free basic allowance for 2026 is €12,348, so most students pay little or no income tax over the year. Any tax withheld during months with higher earnings can be refunded when you file your tax return [S1].

For more detailed information, you can refer to the official resource here.

Always confirm with the responsible authority, as rules may change.

#	statement	kind	verdict	reason
1	A non-EU master's student working as a Werkstudent is allowed to work 140 full days per calendar year.	fact	supported	The context states that 'Students with a residence permit under § 16b AufenthG may work 140 full days or 280 half days per calendar year'. It also mentions that 'For non-EU students the 20-hour rule and the 140-day rule apply simultaneously'. This implies that a non-EU student, including a master's student working as a Werkstudent, is subject to this limit.
2	A non-EU master's student working as a Werkstudent is allowed to work 280 half days per calendar year.	fact	supported	The context states that 'Students with a residence permit under § 16b AufenthG may work 140 full days or 280 half days per calendar year'. This applies to non-EU students, including those working as Werkstudent.
3	Permission from the Ausländerbehörde is not needed for working 140 full days or 280 half days.	fact	supported	The context explicitly states that students 'may work 140 full days or 280 half days per calendar year without needing permission from the Ausländerbehörde'.
4	Permission from the Federal Employment Agency is not needed for working 140 full days or 280 half days.	fact	supported	The context explicitly states that students 'may work 140 full days or 280 half days per calendar year without needing permission from the ... Federal Employment Agency'.
5	A half day is defined as working up to half the regular daily hours of the company.	fact	supported	The context defines a half day as 'any day on which you work up to half the regular daily hours of the company'.
6	A half day is usually defined as working up to four hours.	fact	supported	The context states that a half day is 'usually up to four hours'.
7	Student assistant jobs (HiWi) at a university do not count towards the 140 days limit.	fact	supported	The context states that 'student assistant jobs at the university or a research institute (studentische Hilfskraft / HiWi)' are 'Additionally allowed without counting towards the 140 days'.

#	statement	kind	verdict	reason
8	Student assistant jobs (HiWi) at a research institute do not count towards the 140 days limit.	fact	supported	The context states that 'student assistant jobs at the university or a research institute (studentische Hilfskraft / HiWi)' are 'Additionally allowed without counting towards the 140 days'.
9	A student can work as a HiWi in addition to a Werkstudent position without affecting allowed working days.	fact	supported	The context states that HiWi jobs do not count towards the 140 days limit, which applies to other types of work like Werkstudent positions for non-EU students. Therefore, a HiWi job can be done in addition to a Werkstudent position without affecting the 140-day limit for the Werkstudent work.
10	Earnings as a Werkstudent exceeding the Minijob limit are subject to income tax.	fact	supported	The context states that 'Wages above the Minijob limit are subject to wage tax via your Steuer-ID in tax class I'. This applies to Werkstudent earnings if they exceed the Minijob limit.
11	The Minijob limit is €603 per month in 2026.	fact	supported	The context explicitly states that 'A Minijob is employment with earnings of at most EUR 603 per month ... in 2026'.
12	The tax-free basic allowance for 2026 is €12,348.	fact	supported	The context explicitly states that 'the tax-free basic allowance is EUR 12,348 in 2026'.
13	Most students pay little or no income tax over the year due to the tax-free basic allowance.	fact	supported	The context states that 'Because the tax-free basic allowance is EUR 12,348 in 2026, most students pay little or no income tax over the year'.
14	Any tax withheld during months with higher earnings can be refunded when a tax return is filed.	fact	supported	The context states that 'tax withheld in months with higher earnings is refunded when you file a tax return (Einkommensteuererklärung) via ELSTER'.
15	Rules may change and should be confirmed with the responsible authority.	meta	not scored	While this is generally good advice, the provided context does not explicitly state that rules may change or that they should be confirmed with a responsible authority. It does mention a change in the 140/280 days limit from March 1, 2024, but it doesn't make a general statement about confirming rules.

Question: How long is a Verpflichtungserklärung valid, and for how long is the person who signed it liable for me?

Answer: The Verpflichtungserklärung (formal obligation letter) is valid for a limited time. It should be presented to the embassy or consulate reasonably soon after it is issued, ideally within six months. Older declarations are usually not accepted, and a new one must be signed if more time has passed.

Once you enter Germany, the guarantor's liability for your living costs is legally limited to five years from your entry. This liability can end earlier if the original purpose of your stay changes and a new residence title is issued, such as switching from a student visa to an EU Blue Card or a skilled-worker permit after graduation. However, the liability does not end simply because the visa or first residence permit expires; authorities can still reclaim public funds spent on your maintenance during those five years [S1].

For the most accurate and up-to-date information, please confirm with the Ausländerbehörde (immigration office) or the relevant authority.

#	statement	kind	verdict	reason
1	The Verpflichtungserklärung is valid for a limited time.	fact	supported	The context states that 'the declaration should be presented to the embassy or consulate reasonably soon after it was issued' and 'no more than six months should lie between signing the declaration and the issue of the visa; older declarations are usually not accepted'. This implies a limited validity period for presentation.
2	The Verpflichtungserklärung should be presented to the embassy or consulate reasonably soon after it is issued.	fact	supported	The context explicitly states: 'the declaration should be presented to the embassy or consulate reasonably soon after it was issued'.
3	The Verpflichtungserklärung should be presented to the embassy or consulate ideally within six months after it is issued.	fact	supported	The context states: 'the Federal Foreign Office and the Federal Ministry of the Interior state that no more than six months should lie between signing the declaration and the issue of the visa'. This indicates a six-month ideal timeframe.
4	Older declarations are usually not accepted.	fact	supported	The context explicitly states: 'older declarations are usually not accepted and a new one must be signed'.
5	A new Verpflichtungserklärung must be signed if more than six months have passed since the original was issued.	fact	supported	The context states: 'no more than six months should lie between signing the declaration and the issue of the visa; older declarations are usually not accepted and a new one must be signed'. This directly supports the statement.
6	Once a person enters Germany, the guarantor's liability for the person's living costs is legally limited to five years from the person's entry.	fact	supported	The context explicitly states: 'Once you have entered Germany, the guarantor's liability for your living costs is limited by law to five years from entry (§ 68 Abs. 1 AufenthG)'.
7	The guarantor's liability can end earlier if the original purpose of the person's stay changes.	fact	supported	The context states: 'It ends earlier if the original purpose of your stay is replaced by another one and a new residence title is issued for it'.
8	The guarantor's liability can end earlier if a new residence title is issued.	fact	supported	The context states: 'It ends earlier if the original purpose of your stay is replaced by another one and a new residence title is issued for it'.
9	An example of a new residence title is switching from a student visa to an EU Blue Card.	fact	supported	The context provides this as an example: 'for example when a student switches to an EU Blue Card or a skilled-worker permit after graduating'.
10	An example of a new residence title is switching from a student visa to a skilled-worker permit after graduation.	fact	supported	The context provides this as an example: 'for example when a student switches to an EU Blue Card or a skilled-worker permit after graduating'.
11	The guarantor's liability does not end simply because the visa or first residence permit expires.	fact	supported	The context explicitly states: 'The liability does not end merely because the visa or the first residence permit expires'.
12	Authorities can still reclaim public funds spent on the person's maintenance during those five years.	fact	supported	The context states: 'the authorities can reclaim public money spent on your maintenance from the guarantor during the five years'.
13	For the most accurate and up-to-date information, a person should confirm with the Ausländerbehörde.	referral	not scored	The context mentions asking the office (Ausländerbehörde) for proof acceptance for extension of student residence permit, but does not generalize this advice for 'most accurate and up-to-date information' for all aspects.
14	For the most accurate and up-to-date information, a person should confirm with the relevant authority.	referral	not scored	The context advises to 'Ask the office which proof it accepts before the appointment' regarding extension of a student residence permit, implying that confirming with the relevant authority is good practice for specific situations. However, it does not explicitly state this as a general rule for 'most accurate and up-to-date information' for all matters.

Question: I moved into my flat in Munich on 20 December 2026. By when must I register, which office is responsible, what happens if I am late, and which documents do I need to bring?

Answer: You must register your address (Anmeldung) at the Bürgeramt in Munich by January 4, 2027, which is within two weeks of your move-in date on December 20, 2026. If you miss this deadline, Munich is strict about the two-week rule but may accept that appointments could be available later. It's advisable to keep a screenshot of the earliest bookable appointment as evidence. Registration is free [S1][S4].

Responsible Office

The registration is handled by the Kreisverwaltungsreferat (KVR) at its Bürgerbüros. The central office is located at Ruppertstraße 19, and there are additional offices in various locations throughout Munich. Appointments can be booked through the city's online appointment system [S1].

Required Documents

When you go for your Anmeldung, you need to bring the following documents:

- Valid passport or national ID card (for every person being registered).
- Wohnungsgeberbestätigung: A confirmation from your landlord stating your move-in date and address.
- Completed registration form (Anmeldeformular): This can often be pre-filled online.
- If applicable, for families: Marriage certificate and birth certificates of children, ideally with certified German translations [S2][S3].

Make sure to confirm all details with the KVR or the relevant authority, as rules can change.

Question: I arrive in Berlin on 10 October 2026 on a family-reunification (spouse) visa that is valid until 8 January 2027, and I have an Indian driving licence. What should I do in the first weeks, by when must I apply for the residence permit, and am I allowed to work?

Answer: Here's what you need to do after arriving in Berlin on your family reunification visa:

- Anmeldung (Address Registration): You should register your address (Anmeldung) at the local Bürgeramt (citizens' office) shortly after your arrival. This is essential for various administrative processes.
- Apply for Residence Permit: You must apply for your residence permit at the Ausländerbehörde (immigration office) before your visa expires on January 8, 2027. The recommended deadline to apply is December 11, 2026. It's advisable to book your appointment early, as waiting times can be long [S1].
- Work Rights: As the spouse of a Blue Card holder, you have immediate and unrestricted access to employment and self-employment in Germany [S1].
- Driving Licence Conversion: Your Indian driving licence is valid for six months from your date of residence establishment (the date of your Anmeldung). After this period, you will need to convert it at the Führerscheinstelle (driving licence office). You will have to pass both a theory and a practical test for the conversion, as India is not on the list of countries with reduced requirements for licence conversion [S2][S3].

Make sure to gather all necessary documents for your residence permit application, such as your passport, marriage certificate, proof of your spouse's residence title, and health insurance confirmation. For the driving licence conversion, you will need your original licence, a certified translation, and other documents as specified by the local office.

For the most accurate and updated information, please confirm with the Ausländerbehörde and the local Führerscheinstelle.

Question: My student residence permit expires on 31 March 2027. What is the procedure to extend it, which documents do I need, by when should I apply, and is the 8,000 US dollars currently in my blocked account enough?

Answer: To extend your student residence permit, here's what you need to know:

1. When to Apply

You should apply for the extension by 3 February 2027. This is recommended to ensure your application is processed before your current permit expires on 31 March 2027. Applying early also allows you to receive a Fiktionsbescheinigung (provisional residence document), which keeps your stay lawful while your application is being processed [S1].

2. Required Documents

When applying for the extension, you will typically need the following documents:

- Passport with the national visa
- Biometric photo
- Completed application form (Antrag auf Erteilung eines Aufenthaltstitels)
- Meldebescheinigung (registration certificate)
- Current enrolment certificate (Immatrikulationsbescheinigung) from your university
- Proof of health insurance
- Proof of financing for one year (e.g., a new blocked account statement, scholarship letter, or formal obligation letter)
- Rental contract or other proof of accommodation [S1][S2].

3. Proof of Financing

Regarding your blocked account, 8,000 USD converts to approximately 6,934.24 EUR based on the current exchange rate (as of 16 September 2026). The required amount for a blocked account is typically around 11,904 EUR for one year (992 EUR per month) [S2]. Therefore, you will need to top up your blocked account to meet the required amount before your extension appointment.

Summary

- Apply by: 3 February 2027
- Documents needed: Passport, photos, application form, registration certificate, enrolment certificate, health insurance proof, financing proof, rental contract.
- Blocked account: Ensure it meets the required amount of approximately 11,904 EUR.

Please confirm all details with the Ausländerbehörde (immigration office) as rules can change.

1	The student should apply for the extension by 3 February 2027.	fact	supported	The tool output for 'calculate_deadline' explicitly states that the recommended latest date to apply for a residence permit extension is '2027-02-03'.
2	Applying by 3 February 2027 ensures the application is processed before the current permit expires on 31 March 2027.	fact	UNSUPPORTED	The context states that applying well before the permit expires is recommended, and the deadline calculation provides 139 days remaining, but it does not explicitly state that applying by 3 February 2027 'ensures' processing before 31 March 2027. It only states it's the recommended latest date.

#	statement	kind	verdict	reason
3	Applying early allows the student to receive a Fiktionsbescheinigung.	fact	supported	The context states, 'Applying before expiry triggers a Fiktionsbescheinigung so your stay remains lawful.' and 'if the appointment is only available after the expiry date, the application counts as filed in time and you receive a Fiktionsbescheinigung (§ 81 Abs. 4 AufenthG) that keeps your stay lawful'. This implies that applying before or even on time (if the appointment is later) allows for a Fiktionsbescheinigung.
4	A Fiktionsbescheinigung is a provisional residence document.	fact	UNSUPPORTED	The context describes the Fiktionsbescheinigung as something that 'keeps your stay lawful' and allows you to 'continue studying or working under the previous conditions', which implies it's a provisional document, but it doesn't explicitly use the term 'provisional residence document'.
5	A Fiktionsbescheinigung keeps the student's stay lawful while the application is being processed.	fact	supported	The context explicitly states, 'Applying before expiry triggers a Fiktionsbescheinigung so your stay remains lawful.' and 'you receive a Fiktionsbescheinigung (§ 81 Abs. 4 AufenthG) that keeps your stay lawful and allows you to continue studying or working under the previous conditions.'
6	The student will typically need a passport with the national visa when applying for the extension.	fact	UNSUPPORTED	Section S1 lists 'Passport with the national visa' as a document for a student residence permit. While this section is titled 'Documents for a student residence permit (§ 16b AufenthG)' and not specifically for extension, it's a reasonable inference that these core documents would be required for an extension as well, especially since S2 mentions 'When you extend the residence permit, the Ausländerbehörde again asks for proof of financing'. However, the context does not explicitly state these documents are for 'extension'.
7	The student will typically need a biometric photo when applying for the extension.	fact	UNSUPPORTED	Section S1 lists 'Biometric photo' as a document for a student residence permit. Similar to the passport, it's a reasonable inference but not explicitly stated for 'extension'.
8	The student will typically need a completed application form (Antrag auf Erteilung eines Aufenthaltstitels) when applying for the extension.	fact	UNSUPPORTED	Section S1 lists 'Completed application form (Antrag auf Erteilung eines Aufenthaltstitels)' as a document for a student residence permit. Similar to the passport, it's a reasonable inference but not explicitly stated for 'extension'.
9	The student will typically need a Meldebescheinigung (registration certificate) when applying for the extension.	fact	UNSUPPORTED	Section S1 lists 'Meldebescheinigung' as a document for a student residence permit. Section S3 also states, 'the Ausländerbehörde needs the Meldebescheinigung' after registering the address. Similar to the passport, it's a reasonable inference but not explicitly stated for 'extension'.
10	The student will typically need a current enrolment certificate (Immatrikulationsbescheinigung) from the university when applying for the extension.	fact	UNSUPPORTED	Section S1 lists 'Current enrolment certificate (Immatrikulationsbescheinigung) from the university' as a document for a student residence permit. The student permit is extended 'as long as the studies progress properly', implying proof of enrollment is needed. Similar to the passport, it's a reasonable inference but not explicitly stated for 'extension'.
11	The student will typically need proof of health insurance when applying for the extension.	fact	UNSUPPORTED	Section S1 lists 'Proof of health insurance' as a document for a student residence permit. Similar to the passport, it's a reasonable inference but not explicitly stated for 'extension'.
12	The student will typically need proof of financing for one year when applying for the extension.	fact	supported	Section S2 explicitly states, 'When you extend the residence permit, the Ausländerbehörde again asks for proof of financing for the coming period — usually a new blocked-account statement, a scholarship letter or, once you work, employment contracts and payslips.' Section S1 also mentions 'Proof of financing for one year'.
13	Proof of financing can be a new blocked account statement.	fact	supported	Section S2 explicitly states, 'When you extend the residence permit, the Ausländerbehörde again asks for proof of financing for the coming period — usually a new blocked-account statement'.

14	Proof of financing can be a scholarship letter.	fact	supported	Section S2 explicitly states, 'When you extend the residence permit, the Ausländerbehörde again asks for proof of financing for the coming period — usually... a scholarship letter'. Section S1 also lists 'a scholarship award letter' as proof of financing.
15	Proof of financing can be a formal obligation letter.	fact	supported	Section S1 lists 'a formal obligation letter (Verpflichtungserklärung)' as proof of financing. While S2 doesn't explicitly mention it for extension, S1's general list of financing proofs makes this a valid option.
16	The student will typically need a rental contract or other proof of accommodation when applying for the extension.	fact	UNSUPPORTED	Section S1 lists 'Rental contract or other proof of accommodation' as a document for a student residence permit. Similar to the passport, it's a reasonable inference but not explicitly stated for 'extension'.
17	8,000 USD converts to approximately 6,934.24 EUR based on the current exchange rate (as of 16 September 2026).	fact	supported	The tool output for 'convert_currency' explicitly states that 8000 USD converts to 6934.24 EUR with a rate date of '2026-09-16'.
18	The required amount for a blocked account is typically around 11,904 EUR for one year.	fact	supported	Section S1 states, 'The required amount is adjusted regularly; in 2025 it was EUR 992 per month (EUR 11,904 per year).'
19	The required amount for a blocked account is 992 EUR per month.	fact	supported	Section S1 states, 'in 2025 it was EUR 992 per month'.

Question: I graduate from TU Berlin in September 2026 and have a job offer of €46,000 as a software developer. What happens to my student residence permit after graduation, and do I qualify for the EU Blue Card as a recent graduate?

Answer (after grounding revision): After graduating from TU Berlin, you can apply for a residence permit to look for a job that matches your qualifications for up to 18 months. Once you secure a qualified job, you can switch your permit to an EU Blue Card or a skilled-worker permit [S1].

Regarding your job offer of €46,000 as a software developer, you qualify for the EU Blue Card under the reduced threshold, which is applicable for shortage occupations like IT. The general threshold for the Blue Card is €50,700 [S2].

For further details and to ensure compliance with all requirements, please consult the Ausländerbehörde (immigration office) in your area.

Original answer before revision: After graduating from TU Berlin, you can apply for a residence permit to look for a job that matches your qualifications for up to 18 months. During this period, you are allowed to work in any job. Once you secure a qualified job, you can switch your permit to an EU Blue Card or a skilled-worker permit [S1].

Regarding your job offer of €46,000 as a software developer, you qualify for the EU Blue Card under the reduced threshold, which is applicable for shortage occupations like IT. The general threshold for the Blue Card is €50,700, while the reduced threshold is €45,934. Since your salary exceeds the reduced threshold, you meet the requirements, provided that the job is indeed classified as a shortage occupation and you have a recognized degree [S2].

For further details and to ensure compliance with all requirements, please consult the Ausländerbehörde (immigration office) in your area.

1	A graduate from TU Berlin can apply for a residence permit to look for a job that matches qualifications for up to 18 months.	fact	supported	The context states: 'Graduates of German universities can receive a residence permit to look for a job matching their qualification for up to 18 months'. TU Berlin is a German university, so this statement is directly inferable.
2	Once a qualified job is secured, a graduate can switch the permit to an EU Blue Card.	fact	supported	The context states: 'Once a qualified job is found, the permit is switched to the EU Blue Card or the skilled-worker permit'. This directly supports the statement.
3	Once a qualified job is secured, a graduate can switch the permit to a skilled-worker permit.	fact	supported	The context states: 'Once a qualified job is found, the permit is switched to the EU Blue Card or the skilled-worker permit'. This directly supports the statement.

4	A job offer of €46,000 as a software developer qualifies for the EU Blue Card under the reduced threshold.	fact	supported	The tool output indicates that a salary of 46000 EUR is 'Below the general threshold (50,700.00 EUR) but above the reduced threshold (45,934.20 EUR): qualifies ONLY if the job is a shortage occupation, the degree is less than 3 years old, or the applicant is an IT specialist with 3+ years of experience — which the user indicated.' Since a software developer is an IT specialist, and the user indicated they are a recent graduate (degree less than 3 years old), this statement is inferable.
5	The reduced threshold for the EU Blue Card is applicable for shortage occupations like IT.	fact	supported	The tool output explicitly states that the reduced threshold 'Applies to (a) shortage occupations (e.g. STEM, medicine, IT, teaching, nursing, engineering)'. This directly supports the statement.
6	The general threshold for the Blue Card is €50,700.	fact	supported	The tool output explicitly states: 'general_threshold': {'eur': 50700.0}'. This directly supports the statement.
7	For further details and to ensure compliance with all requirements, consult the Ausländerbehörde (immigration office) in the area.	referral	not scored	While it is generally good advice to consult the Ausländerbehörde for immigration matters, the provided context does not explicitly state this as a requirement or recommendation for 'further details and to ensure compliance with all requirements'. It mentions the Ausländerbehörde handling changes of purpose and requiring the Meldebescheinigung, but not in the general advisory sense of the statement.

Question: My EU Blue Card expires on 15 January 2027 and my salary is €50,000. By when should I apply for the extension, and does my salary still meet the threshold?

Answer: You should apply for the extension of your EU Blue Card by November 20, 2026. This is a recommended date, as authorities suggest applying at least 8 weeks before your permit expires on January 15, 2027. Applying before the expiry date will trigger a Fiktionsbescheinigung, which keeps your residency status valid while your application is processed [S1].

Regarding your salary of €50,000:

- It is below the general threshold of €50,700 for 2026.
- However, it is above the reduced threshold of €45,934.20.

You qualify under the reduced threshold only if your job is a shortage occupation, your degree is less than three years old, or you are an IT specialist with at least three years of experience. Please confirm if any of these conditions apply to your situation [S2].

Question: Wir sind verheiratet und wohnen in Berlin. Ich verdiene 60.000 € brutto, meine Frau 20.000 €. Sollten wir Steuerklasse 3/5 oder 4/4 wählen, wer darf wechseln, und was wäre mein monatliches Netto in Steuerklasse 3?

Answer: ### Steuerklasse und Wechselmöglichkeiten

1. *Wechselmöglichkeiten: Nur verheiratete Paare und eingetragene Lebenspartner können zwischen den Kombinationen IV/IV, III/IV und IV/IV mit Faktor wechseln. Einzelpersonen können keine andere Steuerklasse wählen, außer Alleinerziehende, die Klasse II beantragen. Der Wechsel betrifft nur die monatliche Lohnsteuer, die endgültige Steuer wird nach der jährlichen Steuererklärung festgelegt. [S1]

2. *Antrag auf Steuerklassenwechsel:

- Füllen Sie das Formular „Antrag auf Steuerklassenwechsel bei Ehegatten/Lebenspartnern“ aus.
- Beide Ehepartner müssen unterschreiben.
- Reichen Sie das Formular beim zuständigen Finanzamt ein, entweder online über ELSTER oder per Post.
- Es fallen keine Gebühren an. [S1]

Monatliches Netto in Steuerklasse III

Ihr monatliches Netto bei einem Bruttogehalt von 60.000 € beträgt etwa 3.510 €. Dies ist eine Schätzung und kann je nach individuellen Faktoren variieren. [S2]

Bitte beachten Sie, dass die genauen Beträge von verschiedenen Faktoren abhängen können, und es ratsam ist, einen offiziellen Brutto-Netto-Rechner oder Ihre Gehaltsabrechnung für exakte Zahlen zu verwenden.

Question: I hold an EU Blue Card with a salary of €58,000 and my wife wants to join me. Does she need to pass a German language test before coming, what are the other requirements, and is my income sufficient?

Answer (after grounding revision): Your income of €58,000 meets the general threshold for the EU Blue Card, which is €50,700 for 2026. This means you satisfy the salary condition for family reunification as well [S1].

Requirements for Your Wife's Family Reunification:

1. *Age and Marriage Recognition: Both spouses must be at least 18 years old, and the marriage must be recognized in Germany. You will need a marriage certificate with an apostille or legalisation and a certified translation.
2. *German Language Requirement: Your wife is exempt from proving basic German (A1) before entry, as spouses of EU Blue Card holders do not need to meet this requirement [S1][S2].
3. *Health Insurance: She must have health insurance coverage from the moment of arrival.

Additional Information:

- Your wife will have immediate unrestricted access to the labor market upon arrival [S3].
- After three years of marriage in Germany, she can obtain an independent residence right [S3].

For more detailed information, you can refer to the BAMF website.

Question: I am a mechanical engineer from Brazil without a job offer. Can I come to Germany to look for work with the Opportunity Card, how long could I stay, and would my savings of 40,000 Brazilian reais be enough to live on?

Answer: You can indeed come to Germany to look for work using the Opportunity Card (Chancenkarte), which allows you to stay for up to one year while searching for employment that matches your qualifications as a mechanical engineer [S1].

Regarding your savings, you mentioned having 40,000 Brazilian reais. This converts to approximately 6,738 euros based on the current exchange rate (as of September 16, 2026) [S2]. However, please note that this nominal conversion does not account for the cost of living in Germany, which can vary significantly depending on the city. Therefore, while your savings may be sufficient for a short period, it's essential to research living costs in your intended location to ensure they will cover your expenses during your job search.

For more detailed information about the Opportunity Card, you can visit the official website of the Federal Office for Migration and Refugees (BAMF) here.

Question: I am a nurse from the Philippines with a job offer of €42,000 in a German hospital. Is that enough for the EU Blue Card, and what recognition and language level do I need?

Answer: Your job offer of €42,000 is below both thresholds for the EU Blue Card. The general threshold is €50,700, and the reduced threshold for shortage occupations like nursing is €45,934. You are €8,700 short of the general threshold and €3,934 short of the reduced threshold. You might consider negotiating your salary or applying for a skilled-worker residence permit under § 18b AufenthG, which does not have a fixed salary threshold [S1].

Recognition and Language Requirements

As a nurse, you will need to obtain formal recognition (Anerkennung) from the relevant state authority. The requirements include:

- Language Proficiency: You must demonstrate German language skills at level B2.
- Recognition Process: This involves having your qualifications assessed for equivalence with German standards.

For more detailed information on the recognition process, you can visit anerkennung-in-deutschland.de [S1].

Please confirm these details with the relevant authorities, as regulations may change.

Question: I am 27 and from Turkey and start my studies in October. Roughly how much does statutory student health insurance cost per month in 2026, until what age can I have it, and would the 6,000 Turkish lira my parents can send each month cover it?

Answer: In 2026, the cost of statutory student health insurance (Krankenversicherung der Studenten, KVdS) is typically around €130 to €150 per month. This includes health insurance and long-term care insurance. The exact amount can vary depending on the health insurance fund's additional contribution rate [S1].

You can remain on this student health insurance plan until the end of the semester in which you turn 30 years old [S2].

Regarding the financial support from your parents, 6,000 Turkish Lira converts to approximately €106.86 at the current exchange rate (as of September 16, 2026) [S3]. This amount would not fully cover the monthly cost of student health insurance, as it falls short of the typical range of €130 to €150.

Please confirm these details with the relevant health insurance provider, as rates and conditions can change.

1	The cost of statutory student health insurance (Krankenversicherung der Studenten, KVdS) is typically around "€130 to €150" per month in 2026.	fact	supported	The context [S1] explicitly states, "Typical total: roughly EUR 130–150 per month including care insurance, depending on the fund."
2	The cost includes health insurance and long-term care insurance.	fact	supported	The context [S1] states the typical total is "including care insurance", and breaks down the cost into "Health insurance" and "Long-term care insurance (Pflegeversicherung)".
3	The exact amount can vary depending on the health insurance fund's additional contribution rate.	fact	supported	The context [S1] mentions, "The rate is the same at every fund apart from the fund's individual additional contribution" and "Funds with a low additional contribution are cheaper".
4	A student can remain on the student health insurance plan until the end of the semester in which the student turns 30 years old.	fact	supported	The context [S1] states, "Students enrolled at a state or state-recognised university are compulsorily insured in the statutory system at a reduced student rate until the end of the semester in which they turn 30."
5	6,000 Turkish Lira converts to approximately "€106.86" at the current exchange rate (as of September 16, 2026).	fact	supported	The tool output explicitly states, "Tool convert_currency with arguments {'amount': 6000, 'from_currency': 'TRY', 'to_currency': 'EUR', 'period': 'monthly', 'gross_or_net': 'unknown'} returned: {'data': {'from': {'currency': 'TRY', 'name': 'Turkish Lira', 'amount': 6000.0}, 'to': {'currency': 'EUR', 'name': 'Euro', 'amount': 106.86}..." and "Rate date 2026-09-16".
6	6,000 Turkish Lira would not fully cover the monthly cost of student health insurance.	fact	supported	6,000 TRY converts to €106.86, while the typical monthly cost of student health insurance is €130–150. €106.86 is less than €130.
7	6,000 Turkish Lira falls short of the typical range of "€130 to €150" for student health insurance.	fact	supported	6,000 TRY converts to €106.86, which is indeed less than the typical range of €130 to €150 for student health insurance as stated in [S1].

Question: I will start studying in Germany in 2027 and have 90,000 Chinese yuan saved. Is that enough for the blocked account for one year, and how does the blocked account actually work?

Answer: Your savings of 90,000 Chinese Yuan (CNY) convert to approximately 11,630.70 Euros (EUR) based on the current exchange rate of 0.12923 EUR/CNY as of September 16, 2026.

Blocked Account (Sperrkonto) Overview

- Purpose: The blocked account is a way to prove that you have sufficient funds to support yourself while studying in Germany.
- Amount Required: As of 2026, the minimum amount that must be deposited in the blocked account is 11,904 EUR for one year. This means your current savings are not sufficient for the blocked account requirement.
- Withdrawal: After you arrive in Germany, you can withdraw a maximum of 992 EUR per month from the account. The remaining funds stay blocked until you deregister or leave Germany.
- Opening the Account: You need to open the account with a specialized provider approved by the Federal Foreign Office, such as Expatrio or Fintiba. The process typically involves:
 - Opening the account online with your passport and admission letter.
 - Transferring the required yearly amount plus a small buffer for fees.
 - Receiving a confirmation (Sperrbestätigung) to submit with your visa application.

For more detailed information, you can refer to the official resource here [S1].

Next Steps

- Consider saving additional funds to meet the blocked account requirement.
- Research the providers for opening a blocked account and their fees.

Please confirm with the relevant authority or provider for the most accurate and updated information, as rules may change.

2	The conversion is based on the current exchange rate of 0.12923 EUR/CNY.	fact	supported	The tool output explicitly states the rate value as 0.12923.
3	The exchange rate is as of September 16, 2026.	fact	supported	The tool output states that the rate date is "2026-09-16" and notes that "No fixing on 2026-09-17 (weekend/holiday); the rate of 2026-09-16 was used."
4	The blocked account is a way to prove sufficient funds for studying in Germany.	fact	supported	Section S2 lists 'Blocked account (Sperrkonto)' as the 'most common route for third-country students' to prove financing.
5	As of 2026, the minimum amount for the blocked account is 11,904 EUR for one year.	fact	supported	Section S1 states, 'the embassy checks that the blocked amount is at least EUR 11,904'.
6	The current savings are not sufficient for the blocked account requirement.	fact	supported	The context states that 90,000 CNY converts to 11,630.7 EUR, and the minimum blocked amount is 11,904 EUR. Since 11,630.7 EUR is less than 11,904 EUR, the current savings are not sufficient.
7	After arrival in Germany, a maximum of 992 EUR per month can be withdrawn from the account.	fact	supported	Section S1 states, 'the provider then pays out EUR 992 each month'. Section S2 also mentions, 'you may withdraw at most EUR 992 per month after arrival'.
8	Remaining funds stay blocked until deregistration or leaving Germany.	fact	supported	Section S3 states, 'If you leave Germany before the year ends, the remaining balance is paid out after deregistration (Abmeldung) or proof of departure.'
9	The account needs to be opened with a specialized provider approved by the Federal Foreign Office.	fact	supported	Section S1 states, 'blocked accounts are now offered by specialised providers approved by the Federal Foreign Office.'

12	The process typically involves transferring the required yearly amount plus a small buffer for fees.	fact	supported	Section S1, step 2, states, 'Transfer the yearly amount plus a small buffer for transfer fees'.
13	The process typically involves receiving a confirmation (Sperrbestätigung) to submit with a visa application.	fact	supported	Section S1, step 3, states, 'Receive the blocking confirmation (Sperrbestätigung) and submit it with the visa application'.
14	Additional funds should be saved to meet the blocked account requirement.	fact	supported	The conversion shows 11,630.7 EUR, but the requirement is 11,904 EUR. This implies that additional funds are needed.
15	Providers for opening a blocked account and their fees should be researched.	fact	supported	Section S1 mentions 'typically with an opening fee of about EUR 50–160 and monthly fees between EUR 0 and 10' and advises to 'Choose a provider that also offers the health insurance bundle you want, that pays out quickly... and that refunds the deposit if the visa is refused.' This implies research is needed.
16	The relevant authority or provider should be confirmed for accurate and updated information.	referral	not scored	The context mentions that 'German banks have largely withdrawn from this business' and that 'blocked accounts are now offered by specialised providers approved by the Federal Foreign Office'. It also mentions checking the embassy's country-specific leaflet (Merkblatt Finanzierungsnachweis) in S2 and asking the Ausländerbehörde which proof it accepts in S5. This implies confirming with relevant authorities/providers.
17	Rules may change.	meta	not scored	The context mentions 'Since 2022 the German banks have largely withdrawn from this business' and 'Well-known providers in 2026 include Expatrio, Fintiba, Coracle and Care Concept', indicating changes over time. Also, S5 mentions that 'many offices ask for a new declaration or a blocked-account statement at each extension', implying rules can vary or change.

Question: My current gross salary is 22 lakh INR per year. Is a €52,000 offer in Germany enough for the Blue Card, and what would I take home?

Answer: Your current gross salary of 22 lakh INR converts to approximately €19,866 per year based on the current exchange rate (as of September 16, 2026) [source: ECB reference rate]. This conversion is nominal and does not account for purchasing power or cost of living differences.

Regarding the €52,000 offer in Germany:

- It meets the general Blue Card threshold of €50,700 for 2026, so you satisfy the salary condition for any qualifying occupation.
- The offer also exceeds the reduced threshold of €45,934.20, which applies to shortage occupations and recent graduates [source: Blue Card eligibility].

Estimated Take-Home Pay

For the €52,000 gross annual salary:

- Net Annual Salary: approximately €33,391
- Net Monthly Salary: approximately €2,782.58

This estimate includes deductions for income tax, health insurance, and other contributions [source: salary estimation].

Please remember to confirm all details with the relevant authorities, as rules and thresholds can change.

Question: I am moving to Munich for a €70,000 job and I am Catholic. What church tax rate applies in Bavaria, how is church tax collected, and what would my monthly net be in tax class 1?

Answer: In Bavaria, the church tax (Kirchensteuer) rate is 8% of your income tax if you declare membership in a church that levies this tax during your Anmeldung (address registration) [S1]. The church tax is automatically deducted from your salary by your employer, based on the information provided during your registration.

Regarding your monthly net salary, with a gross annual salary of €70,000 in tax class 1 and being a member of the Catholic Church, your estimated monthly net income would be approximately €3,465.94. This estimate includes deductions for income tax, church tax, health insurance, and other social contributions [S2].

Please remember that these figures are estimates and can vary based on specific circumstances. It's advisable to confirm with an official Brutto-Netto calculator or your payslip for exact amounts.

Question: I arrive on 25 October 2026 with travel insurance only and start work on 1 November 2026. Is travel insurance acceptable for the residence permit, when must my proper health insurance start, and what do I have to give my employer on day one?

Answer: 1. Health Insurance Requirement: Travel insurance is not sufficient for obtaining a residence permit in Germany. You must have health insurance that is valid for the residence permit, which can be either statutory student insurance or a recognized private policy. Incoming travel insurance only covers the initial weeks and is not accepted beyond that period [S1][S2][S4].

2. Start of Health Insurance: Your proper health insurance must start on your first day of employment, which is 1 November 2026. This ensures that you have continuous coverage from the moment you begin working [S4].

3. Documents for Your Employer: On your first day of work, you need to provide your employer with:

- Your Steuer-ID (tax identification number).

Question: Two banks have refused to open an account for me because I have no SCHUFA history yet, and I want to bring my savings of 15,000 US dollars to Germany. Do I have a right to an account, what is SCHUFA, and how much is that in euros?

Answer (after grounding revision): 1. *Right to a Bank Account: Under the Payment Accounts Act (Zahlungskontengesetz, ZKG), banks cannot refuse you solely based on a lack of SCHUFA history or a poor SCHUFA score [S1].

2. *What is SCHUFA?: SCHUFA is the largest credit reference agency in Germany. It records information about your accounts, credit cards, loans, mobile contracts, and payment defaults, and computes a score that is used by landlords, lenders, and service providers [S5].

3. *Currency Conversion: Your savings of 15,000 US dollars is approximately 13,001.70 euros based on the exchange rate from September 16, 2026. Please note that this conversion is nominal and does not account for purchasing power or cost of living differences, and banks may apply a spread on the exchange rate [conversion details].

Not from the knowledge base: For more information on opening a basic account, you can refer to the Verbraucherzentrale website. Original answer before revision: 1. *Right to a Bank Account: Under the Payment Accounts Act (Zahlungskontengesetz, ZKG), every person legally residing in the EU has the right to a basic payment account (Basiskonto) at any bank that offers consumer accounts. This means that banks cannot refuse you solely based on a lack of SCHUFA history or a poor SCHUFA score. A Basiskonto allows you to make deposits, withdrawals, transfers, and direct debits, but it does not allow for overdrafts [S1].

2. *What is SCHUFA?: SCHUFA is the largest credit reference agency in Germany. It records information about your accounts, credit cards, loans, mobile contracts, and payment defaults, and computes a score that is used by landlords, lenders, and service providers. As a new arrival, you will not have any negative entries, but you also won't have a credit history, which is normal and not considered a bad score [S5].

3. *Currency Conversion: Your savings of 15,000 US dollars is approximately 13,001.70 euros based on the exchange rate from September 16, 2026. Please note that this conversion is nominal and does not account for purchasing power or cost of living differences, and banks may apply a spread on the exchange rate [conversion details].

1	Banks cannot refuse an account solely based on a lack of SCHUFA history.	fact	UNSUPPORTED	The context states that a new arrival has no negative entries but also no history, and this is normal and not a bad score. However, it does not explicitly state that banks cannot refuse an account solely based on a lack of SCHUFA history. It only states that a poor SCHUFA score is not a reason for refusal for a basic payment account.
2	Banks cannot refuse an account solely based on a poor SCHUFA score.	fact	supported	The context explicitly states in S1: 'The bank may not refuse because of a poor SCHUFA score' for a basic payment account.

Question: How much Kindergeld will I receive for two children, and where do I apply?

Answer: The knowledge base does not provide specific information about the amount of Kindergeld (child benefit) for two children or the application process. I recommend contacting the Familienkasse (Family Benefits Office) for accurate details. You can find more information on their official website: Familienkasse.
